Research Statement: Required

The primary requirement for the research statement is to define and situate your research within an academic/disciplinary context. You should remember that people in the academic community are the primary audience/readership for postgraduate research. This means that you will need to identify:

- 1.The research questions or problems that you intend to address and how your work will contribute to your field's knowledge;
- 2.The research context for your project/programme of work, , including, but not limited to, literature review, hypotheses, and expected impact;
- 3.The methods you think you will use to pursue the key questions. If you plan to use archival empirical methods, specify the model(s) and what you expect to find.
4. Two potential supervisors for your research – please refer to the staff profiles as listed by Academic Groups - https://www.bristol.ac.uk/business-school/about/academic-groups/. Supervisors need to be contacted in advance, but we cannot guarantee their availability. If the supervisor you seek cannot offer supervision, try to identify alternative supervisors. You may also submit application without identification of supervisors, and we will try our best to find a match, although we cannot guarantee supervision.

Personal statement: Required

In cases where the postgraduate degree does not contain a social sciences-orientated dissertation and research methodology modules, applicants are encouraged to articulate how their background has equipped them with the necessary research skills for doctoral level research in the social sciences, e.g. by indicating any academic publications, research-related professional experience, or research methods courses undertaken that may be indicative of their research potential. Aptitude test results such as GMAT and GRE can be submitted as evidence of PhD-level analytical and verbal abilities.

Selection process

- Academic achievement
- Research statement
- Academic references
- Personal statement
- English language ability (where applicable)

If required, interviewees based overseas will normally be interviewed by telephone or Skype.

Applicants will be notified by email when a decision has been made and decision letters will be available to view and print by logging into the application. If there is a deadline by which applicants must accept an offer of admission or pay a deposit, this will be stated in the offer letter.

Offers will typically be made in line with the academic requirements set out in the prospectus entry for the programme.

Offers made may be conditional or unconditional. An unconditional offer will be made to applicants who have already met the conditions and provided evidence that conditions have been met. Where academic or language requirements have not yet been fulfilled, applicants will receive a conditional offer outlining the requirements that must be met and by which date evidence must be provided.

Deferrals are only selectively permitted for this programme depending on the reasons or circumstances raised. Otherwise, applicants are encouraged to re-submit their application for consideration following year
